

SENATE TO PROBE WHEAT PROBLEM

BROOKS' THIRD OFFENSE TRIAL IS SCHEDULED

Petit Jurors Called To Report At 9 A. M. To Begin Trial of Man.

All Pickaway-co petit jurors are to report at the county clerk's office Wednesday at 9 a. m. in preparation for the trial of Sam Brooks, of Five Points, under indictment for third offense to the liquor laws.

The trial of Brooks has been hanging fire for several weeks but is just now come to a head with Edwin F. Snyder being appointed by the court at the request of Brooks as his attorney. It was found that Brooks was an indigent person and unable to employ his attorney, thus the action of the court in naming Snyder.

The case of the state against Brooks has drawn much comment throughout Pickaway-co circles. Brooks was said to have made a boast that every time he went into the courthouse to pay a part of a fine assessed him in probate court, he carried liquor with him and wasn't afraid of being arrested.

Brooks must have made this boast once to often, for Deputy Sheriff "Doggy" Ward learned of the boast and the next time Brooks entered the courthouse placed him under arrest.

Ward found a portion of alleged whiskey on Brooks and he was bound over to the grand jury on a third offense charge. He was indicted by the grand jury and pleaded not guilty to the indictment. He has been held in the county jail since that time.

Emmitt L. Crist will represent the state in the trial which it is expected will not require much time.

CONDITION OF TAFT IS SAME

Son Leaves For Home, Says Father Is Much Improved—Doctors Cautious.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Though former Chief Justice William Howard Taft, remained in a helpless condition today, members of his family had been so assured of at least temporary improvement that his son Robert, left the capital last night for his home in Cincinnati.

Before leaving, young Taft told his representatives his father was much better than when he left last week, and unless something unexpected happens his father might live for some time.

Drs. Clayton and Hagner, however, continued their cautious bulletins and late last night reported their 73-year-old patient had shown no change during the day.

The age patient was reported resting well this morning, after a comfortable night.

Trustees, Locked In Room, Escape Through Window

The board of trustees of Jackson-twp met Monday for a regular session. The meeting turned out to be a little more eventful than usual. Jake Ward of Fox post office, a trustee, finished his business at the meeting.

He left the little voting house. His mind was on the business before him, and as he closed the door, he slipped the bolt on the outside in place and went on about his affairs.

Several hours later, Mr. Ward, one of the men and asked if anything of importance transpired after he had left. In no gentle terms he was informed that the trustees had spent the entire time since Ward left, in taking a window out of the building, in order to get out.

KIWANIS HEARS REV. GRAUSER

Worthington Man Delivers Fine Address On Kiwanis Education Monday.

Rev. Clarence Grauser, pastor at the Worthington, O., Methodist church, delivered one of the finest talks the Circleville Kiwanis Club has heard since its organization Monday evening, telling of "Kiwanis Education." Rev. Grauser proved himself a fluent speaker and his talk was very interesting.

He told of the objects of Kiwanis and especially their work on the underprivileged child situation. He told of several incidents where the underprivileged child, not the one who is crippled and can be cured by medical aid, but the one who is reared in a family where education of the proper kind is impossible, had been a detriment to his community because he did not have the right start and the proper chance in life.

Grauser is trustee of the Northern Club of Columbus, and was accompanied to Circleville by Jimmy Grube, of Columbus, chairman of the Kiwanis publicity committee, who gave a few words and introduced the speaker.

A number of Kiwanians were expected to make the trip to Chillicothe Tuesday evening to take part in the Chillicothe club's ladies' night.

Stanley Beckett, of Ashville, was a guest of C. E. Hill.

LEGION TO AID DISABLED VETS TO FILE CLAIM

All World War Injured Must File Reports For Compensation By April 6.

According to the records of the Adjutant General's Department Washington, D. C., approximately 400 veterans in Pickaway-co suffered disabilities while serving in the World War, many of whom failed to file claims for government relief. These men, if still disabled and can furnish evidence to substantiate their claims, are entitled to financial and medical relief from the United States Veterans' Bureau. However, all claims and necessary evidence must be filed before April 6, 1930, according to recent legislation passed by Congress.

TO AID VETERANS

In order that no disabled veteran whose disabilities are the direct result of his military service shall be deprived of the benefits to which he is justly entitled from this government, the American Legion of Ohio, through its Posts, is prepared and ready to assist him in the preparation and prosecution of his claim. In its efforts to serve the disabled veterans the American Legion is cooperating with the United States Veterans' Bureau, which is unable to make direct contact with these men.

For information, call on Howard Hall Post 134 in Circleville.

While the American Legion is ready and willing to aid the disabled veterans, it at no time guarantees to these veterans government benefits. If all requirements are complied with, and necessary evidence furnished, in accordance with the United States Veterans' Bureau laws and regulations, there is no doubt but that such claims will be satisfactorily adjusted.

Due to the inaccuracy of the addresses, the American Legion as well as the United States Veterans' bureau must rely on the cooperation of other agencies in contacting these men, and asks The Herald to assist in this work by publishing the names of these disabled veterans so that they may see this article and take advantage of the opportunity to file before it is too late.

The Herald's great profit-sharing campaign is at the close of its second week, with many candidates showing large gains daily. The voting has increased at a surprising rate during the last few days. More candidates are out after subscriptions than at first started, and during the next week every candidate is planning to make the largest gain of the entire campaign.

Those who are running up their score are those who have devoted a little time to that end, who have been busy and have not neglected one chance to secure a subscription wherever possible. You candidates should get in touch with all your friends at once. Certain candidates have told the writer that they had lost subscriptions because they "intended" to see such and such a person some time, but when they did get to see him he had given his subscription to someone else. Don't procrastinate, but get to them right away. Once your friends see you are actually "out to win," the results will be wonderful, they will "come across" with many subscriptions without much effort.

In order that everyone may compete on an equal basis The Herald extends the "postmark privilege" of mailing in subscriptions and remittances from outside candidates to apply on the present offer, providing the envelope bears a postmark not later than 5:30 p. m., candidates living outside Circleville having the chance to work right up until 5:30 o'clock Thursday night and mailing their reply to the campaign manager and thus sharing in the extra votes given that day.

Already the campaign department at The Herald office is being deluged with subscriptions from all parts of the territory, every township had its new subscribers long before this writing. Some candidates have started to work in dead earnest, but the others are now starting and before the campaign is another week older, every single live one in the list will be out hustling after subscriptions. It is our candid advice to let nothing stop each and every one of you from going after and getting the largest possible bonus of extra votes every Thursday night. For Thursday has been set aside as report day throughout the campaign.

This week we will have an entirely new vote offer and will show the live candidate a wonderful

COUNTY RETAIL MERCHANTS TO HAVE MEETING

W. E. Crist Receives Letter Asking Arrangements To Aid Unemployment.

W. E. Crist, of the Crist department store, is in the receipt of a letter from the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants which was sent out with the idea of organizing merchants in an effort to speed up employment and to aid in the reduction of the state's critical unemployment condition.

Mr. Crist announced that he intends to make the rounds of the county to aid in the organization of the merchants in his line of merchandise and to arrange to hold a meeting which date and place is not yet settled.

Following is the letter which was received by Mr. Crist from George V. Sheridan, executive director of the council:

"At the suggestion of Governor Cooper, the council is appointing a merchant in each county to serve on a local temporary committee on unemployment. Seven other state-wide organizations representing manufacturing, banking, labor, and like groups are doing the same today. This will establish in each county a hastily thrown together local committee to consider and execute certain definite suggestions for speeding up employment.

The committee for your county will be asked to assemble the afternoon of either March 10th or 11th, when a special representatives from the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations will meet with you to outline a plan which we believe will contribute to the immediate relief of the situation. You will be notified of place, date and hour of meeting.

The Council hereby appoints you to serve on the committee for your county. We had to act rapidly and I did not even have time to call you on the phone to secure your acceptance in advance. If you find it absolutely impossible to serve by reason of absence from the city, or some similar condition, will you name your substitute and advise me at once.

The unemployment situation in Ohio is most serious, and of course this vitally affects our retail operations. The Governor has worked out plans for stimulating both public and private work at this time. This should not only provide work for hundreds and even thousands who need it, but will be valuable psychologically. The state representative who will meet with your committee will give you the details of this plan.

Trusting that you will accept this appointment by the council and that you will find it possible to give this highly important subject your attention, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE V. SHERIDAN,
Executive Director.

CAN TRUSTEES "FIRE" STOUT?

Attorney Leist Says Body Cannot Act In Asking Resignation of Constable.

The possibility that Circleville-twp trustees have no jurisdiction over the case of Nelson H. Stout, constable, whose resignation was asked by state prohibition commissioner, Rupert R. Beetham, in a letter to Lyman McGath, township clerk, was expressed by Stout's attorney, C. A. Leist, Tuesday. He said that there is nothing at all that the trustees can do, legally.

This body was to meet Tuesday afternoon to consider the order of Beetham that Stout's resignation be ordered following a raid which was conducted on Feb. 22 when the state agents say Stout was found washing glasses which had contained whiskey. The state men also reported that Stout refused to aid them in searching the place and even went so far as to tell them they could not search the restaurant.

Leist said that the only way Stout can be removed from office is by action of Gov. Myers V. Cooper, a petition signed by five per cent of the voters in the township in which Stout is constable.

Just what action the trustees will take is not known for it is understood they have been told they have no authority in the case.

INVESTIGATION WILL INCLUDE STABILIZATION

Report That Farm Board Intends To Retreat In Program Causes Action.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Deeply concerned over the struggle between the federal farm board and powerful speculative interests for control of domestic grain markets, the Senate today planned an exhaustive inquiry into all phases of the government's drive to stabilize the prices of wheat, cotton and other farm products.

The Senate agriculture committee met this morning to pass upon the Nye resolution, directing such an inquiry, and there was every indication the investigation would be approved. Once supported by the committee, the inquiry undoubtedly will be authorized by the Senate.

The probe will cover the activities of the federal farm board in buying between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 bushels of wheat in an effort to stabilize the price at $1.25 a bushel. It likewise will include alleged efforts of speculative interests to defeat and discredit the government's stabilization program. Rumors that American dealers even went so far as to attempt to slash prices on the world markets in order to deflate American values likewise will be investigated.

ATTITUDE FRIENDLY

The attitude of administration leaders was friendly to the proposed inquiry. They said the investigation probably would give the country desirable information about grain market conditions and the efforts of the government to stabilize prices. There was no indication to oppose the resolution.

The incident that provoked the demand for an inquiry was a report from Chicago that the farm board intended to retreat in its stabilization program. This aroused leaders of the Senate's "farm bloc" and Senator Nye (R) of N. D., sponsored the resolution of inquiry.

"I heard from farm leaders that the board intended to modify its relief program by buying generally," said Nye. "This would be contrary to the provisions of the farm relief act and a direct reversal of policy. Heretofore, the board has purchased grain through co-operatives, as was provided by law. To change that policy now means to admit defeat at the hands of speculators.

"There can be no material relief that doesn't step on the toes of the men who have dominated the grain exchanges for years past. The government's agencies must fight the selfish speculative interests that have fixed ruinous prices for the farmer in the past. If the government doesn't see it, the administration of farm relief will be lost."

Already the campaign department at The Herald office is being deluged with subscriptions from all parts of the territory, every township had its new subscribers long before this writing. Some candidates have started to work in dead earnest, but the others are now starting and before the campaign is another week older, every single live one in the list will be out hustling after subscriptions. It is our candid advice to let nothing stop each and every one of you from going after and getting the largest possible bonus of extra votes every Thursday night. For Thursday has been set aside as report day throughout the campaign.

This week we will have an entirely new vote offer, one that will allow the live candidates a wonderful "postmark privilege"

Here is the offer for next week. Read it carefully—then get busy!

YOUR NEXT PRIZE WINNING OPPORTUNITY

It has been decided to make another offer of extra votes to last from Wednesday, March 5 to Thursday, March 13, at 5:30 p. m. This offer is for either new or old subscriptions and the wide candidates will go after and save the 300,000 Bonus Ballot. Do not forget that every NEW subscription will count DOUBLE the regular scale of votes. Here is the proposition:

$ 25 in subscriptions will count	50,000 Extra Votes
$ 50 in subscriptions will count	75,000 Extra Votes
$ 75 in subscriptions will count	110,000 Extra Votes
$100 in subscriptions will count	150,000 Extra Votes
$125 in subscriptions will count	200,000 Extra Votes
$150 in subscriptions will count	300,000 Extra Votes

Also Every new subscription turned in between the above mentioned dates will count just double the regular number of votes and the cash count on the above offer of extra votes.

COUNTY RETAIL MERCHANTS TO HAVE MEETING

W. E. Crist Receives Letter Asking Arrangements To Aid Unemployment.

W. E. Crist, of the Crist department store, is in the receipt of a letter from the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants which was sent out with the idea of organizing merchants in an effort to speed up employment and to aid in the reduction of the state's critical unemployment condition.

Mr. Crist announced that he intends to make the rounds of the county to aid in the organization of the merchants in his line of merchandise and to arrange to hold a meeting which date and place is not yet settled.

Following is the letter which was received by Mr. Crist from George V. Sheridan, executive director of the council:

"At the suggestion of Governor Cooper, the council is appointing a merchant in each county to serve on a local temporary committee on unemployment. Seven other state-wide organizations representing manufacturing, banking, labor, and like groups are doing the same today. This will establish in each county a hastily thrown together local committee to consider and execute certain definite suggestions for speeding up employment.

The committee for your county will be asked to assemble the afternoon of either March 10th or 11th, when a special representatives from the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations will meet with you to outline a plan which we believe will contribute to the immediate relief of the situation. You will be notified of place, date and hour of meeting.

The Council hereby appoints you to serve on the committee for your county. We had to act rapidly and I did not even have time to call you on the phone to secure your acceptance in advance. If you find it absolutely impossible to serve by reason of absence from the city, or some similar condition, will you name your substitute and advise me at once.

The unemployment situation in Ohio is most serious, and of course this vitally affects our retail operations. The Governor has worked out plans for stimulating both public and private work at this time. This should not only provide work for hundreds and even thousands who need it, but will be valuable psychologically. The state representative who will meet with your committee will give you the details of this plan.

Trusting that you will accept this appointment by the council and that you will find it possible to give this highly important subject your attention, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE V. SHERIDAN,
Executive Director.

CHAS. BELL ON HOME BOARD

Commissioners Name Fifth Member Under New Law Recently Enacted.

Charles Bell of N. Court-st was named as the fifth member of the Children's Home board by the Pickaway-co commissioners at their weekly meeting Monday.

Under a new law recently enacted by the state legislature it is necessary that the board be comprised of five members instead of four which has been the custom heretofore.

Other members of the board include: M. I. Brown, Washington-twp, who was reappointed Monday, Dr. O. J. Moon, New Holland, Charles Schwan, Tarlton, and William Beavers, Circleville. All members serve for a term of one year.

Indicted Cashier of Maywood Bank

Miss Laverne Lindgren, indicted cashier of the defunct People's State Bank of Maywood, Ill. Miss Lindgren and Elmer P. Landgren, president of the bank, were indicted following discovery of $200,000 shortage in the bank's accounts.

JOHN WALTERS IS CANDIDATE

County Commissioner To Run For Second Term on Republican Ticket.

John E. Walters, R.F.D. 3, Circleville, announced Tuesday that he will be a candidate for reelection as county commissioner subject to the Republican primaries in August.

Walters has served two years as a commissioner.

The election this year will see a fight for but one commissioner's job while in two years the office of the two other commissioners expire leaving a fight for the two posts.

As yet no Republican has announced his candidacy opposing Walters, although John W. Hay, of Ashville, and R. L. Rowe, are candidates for the Democratic nomination.

CAN TRUSTEES "FIRE" STOUT?

Attorney Leist Says Body Cannot Act In Asking Resignation of Constable.

The possibility that Circleville-twp trustees have no jurisdiction over the case of Nelson H. Stout, constable, whose resignation was asked by state prohibition commissioner, Rupert R. Beetham, in a letter to Lyman McGath, town ship clerk, was expressed by Stout's attorney, C. A. Leist, Tuesday. He said that there is nothing at all that the trustees can do, legally.

This body was to meet Tuesday afternoon to consider the order of Beetham that Stout's resignation be ordered, following a raid which was conducted on the Gem restaurant on Feb. 22 when the state agents say Stout was found washing glasses which had contained whiskey. The state men also reported that Stout refused to aid them in searching the place and even went so far as to tell them they could not search the restaurant.

Leist says that the only way Stout can be removed from office is by action of Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, or a petition signed by five per cent of the voters in the township in which Stout is constable.

Just what action the trustees will take is not known for it is understood they have been told they have no authority in the case.

Bernice Haggard, New Holland, was taken to the Athens State hospital for the Insane Monday by Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. John G. Ward Jr. after being adjudged insane by Probate Judge E. A. Brown under the medical testimony of Dr. J. B. May and Dr. A. F. Kaler of New Holland.

INVESTIGATION WILL INCLUDE STABILIZATION

Report That Farm Board Intends To Retreat In Program Causes Action.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Deeply concerned over the struggle between the federal farm board and powerful speculative interests for control of domestic grain markets, the Senate today planned an exhaustive inquiry into all phases of the government's drive to stabilize the prices of wheat, cotton and other farm products.

The Senate agriculture committee met this morning to pass upon the Nye resolution, directing such an inquiry, and there was every indication the investigation would be approved. Once supported by the committee, the inquiry undoubtedly will be authorized by the Senate.

The probe will cover the activities of the federal farm board in buying between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 bushels of wheat in an effort to stabilize the price at $1.25 a bushel. It likewise will include alleged efforts of speculative interests to defeat and discredit the government's stabilization program. Rumors that American dealers even went so far as to attempt to slash prices on the world markets in order to deflate American values likewise will be investigated.

ATTITUDE FRIENDLY

The attitude of administration leaders was friendly to the proposed inquiry. They said the investigation probably would give the country desirable information about grain market conditions and the efforts of the government to stabilize prices. There was no indication to oppose the resolution.

The incident that provoked the demand for an inquiry was a report from Chicago that the farm board intended to retreat in its stabilization program. This aroused leaders of the Senate's "farm bloc" and Senator Nye (R) of N. D., sponsored the resolution of inquiry.

"I heard from farm leaders that the board intended to modify its relief program by buying generally," said Nye. "This would be contrary to the provisions of the farm relief act and a direct reversal of policy. Heretofore, the board has purchased grain through co-operatives, as was provided by law. To change that policy now means to admit defeat at the hands of speculators."

"There can be no material relief that doesn't step on the toes of the men who have dominated the grain exchanges for years past. The government's agencies must fight the selfish speculative interests that have fixed ruinous prices for the farmer in the past. If the government doesn't see it, the administration of farm relief will be lost."

A group of Williamsport merchants will meet with the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting this evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. It is expected eight or ten men led by C. E. Hill, Williamsport funeral director, will make the trip.

Clarence Swearingen, Williamsport Methodist minister, will be the speaker of the evening.

PROBATE OFFICER INSPECTS HOMES

Residences of Persons Receiving Pensions Are Being Examined By Brown.

Probation Officer Lowell M. Brown is engaged at the present time in examining the homes of mothers and widows who are granted pensions each month by the county commissioners. The state law requires that the homes be examined twice each year by the probation officer.

Seventy widows and mothers of disabled husbands of Pickaway-co receive these pensions each month.

It Is Easy To End Fat

That is, in the right way, used by modern physicians. No abnormal exercise or diet, but help to a gland that is weak. The recent large reduction in excess fat has been largely due to that method.

This modern method is embodied in Marmola's prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. In almost every circle you can see the amazing change it brings. If over-fat, you owe yourself a trial of Marmola. Don't remain abnormal. All Marmola's supply Marmola at $1 a box. Each box states the formula and tells the reasons for results. Start growing thin as your friends have done, at once.

CHEVY GARAGE USED-CAR SALE

The greatest 30-day sale of used cars ever staged locally started Saturday at the Harden Stevenson Co., Chevrolet dealer. Automobiles of all makes, each completely reconditioned, will be offered.

"Unused transportation" is the key-word of the sale, according to Mr. Harden. "That is what these cars really mean, service that has not yet been used."

"Too many persons have the wrong impression of used cars and the values that lie in them. This results from the unfortunate employment of the word 'used' which implies a previous ownership and a reduced worth."

"Today cars are built with years of life and limitless thousands of miles in them. Drivers are more efficient today. Cars are serviced more often than formerly. Better roads reduce abuse of travel. Cars are traded in when the bulk of their lives still is ahead of them. Some have been driven only a little longer than is necessary to break them in. Thousands of so-called used cars being offered today at prices far below their actual value are better than cars of like age still being run by their original owners."

"Backing our policy of careful trade-ins is the national Chevrolet policy of completely reconditioning a car before we offer it for resale. Every part of such a car is carefully checked, and if not up to our rigid standards, is repaired or replaced. The result is a car in more nearly perfect condition and with more service in it than if it was still in its first owner's hands."

PETTIT SPONSORS RADIO HOME TEST

The Pettit Tire and Battery Shop, exclusive dealer of Atwater-Kent Radios, is sponsoring a home test with Atwater-Kent Radios which starts Tuesday, March 4, and ends April 1. During this period they will place an Atwater-Kent Radio in the homes of any one interested in a new Radio for a three-day test of stations and distant stations. This gives every contestant an opportunity to find out more about Atwater-Kent Radios and each week the winner will be awarded a credit of $15 and $10 to apply on a new Atwater-Kent Radio.

Mr. Pettit is very much enthused in this new idea and feels that with their prize awards much interest will be shown in Atwater-Kent Radios during the next four weeks.

EARLY GERMINATION SEED TEST RESULTS REPORTED

Pickaway-co corn growers who attended the county wide growers meeting Feb. 20, at the Farm Bureau office, learn that the average section in Ohio was in a precarious position relative to seed corn for 1930. The unusual amount of moisture which accompanied the maturing period of the 1929 crop and which continued throughout the harvesting and storage, has resulted in a critical seed corn situation in most sections of Ohio.

Pickaway-co farmers are more fortunate than the average Ohio farmer, although there are a number of growers who must look up seed for their spring needs. Early germination tests conducted throughout the county indicate the importance of growers obtaining a definite germination test of their seed.

The results obtained from early tests conducted by Mrs. John Sark, of Ashville, show the following:

Harman Wright, 700 ears had a 95 percent germination; H. Peters, 400 ears, 85 percent; Donald Courtright, 200 ears, 92 percent; Ezra Hedges, 220 ears, 96 percent; J. W. Teegardin, 140 ears, 95 percent; J. W. Hay, 240 ears, 72 percent.

A number of men in addition to those who thought they had good seed, upon running germination tests, have found it necessary to discard all of their seed and seek other seed, because their corn did not grow. Good seed corn is the first essential that assures economic crop returns. Proper fitting of the seed bed, correct adjustment of the corn planter and liberal fertilizer and accompanied by a wise program of crop cultivation, are important factors which will be reflected in the harvesting of the corn crop of 1930.

SIX COUNTY TEAMS PLAY IN TOURNAMENTS DURING WEEK

Scioto, Williamsport, Pickaway and Circleville High School Listed At Westerville, C. A. C. at Columbus and Gordons at Bremen In Heavy Schedule.

Pickaway-co basketball fans are looking forward to another big week of basketball when six county teams take parts in tournament played in three different locations.

The three county league teams, Scioto, Williamsport and Pickaway, finishing one, two, three in the tournament ended Saturday, along with the Circleville high school Tigers, travel to Westerville to take part in the central district class B meet.

The Circleville Athletic Club team treks to Columbus Friday evening to take part in the Ohio State Journal tournament.

The same evening the Gordon Tire team, claimants to the city championship by virtue of their victory over the Club last week, goes to Bremen to take part in a tournament there.

The Gordons will play the Glenford team, with the Mechling boys of Capitol University fame in the lineup.

There is a big possibility that

Pickaway-co teams may be forced to meet each other. It's just a trick of the fates that Williamsport and Scioto would meet in the district meet after their great game Saturday night. There is Circleville high school and Pickaway to consider. Either of these teams may be matched with the other.

Since their is no district or state girls' tournament, the county girls' teams have ended their seasons.

FERTILIZER SALES

HIGH, SAYS BRIGGS

Ohio farmers are using more fertilizer this year than ever before, according to H. J. Briggs, service manager of the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau, if fertilizer sales figures for this date mean anything. Mr. Briggs said that the Farm Bureau had sold more fertilizer in Ohio than ever before at this time of year and had shipping orders on about 200 per cent more than last year at this date.

Incidentally, he said, more than 100 Farm Bureau fertilizer men had qualified for special prizes offered by the Home Office in Columbus for sales before Feb. 15.

WITTENBERG EXPECTED TO RETURN TO BUCKEYE A. A.

By JOSEPH K. RUKENBROD

COLUMBUS, March 4.—Wittenberg College may return to the fold of the Buckeye Intercollegiate Athletic Association and officials of the league may not be forced to look to the Ohio Conference for a sixth member.

This much was indicated at the annual winter meeting of the conference officials here last night. Wittenberg withdrew from the conference at the close of the last football season, after charges of subsidizing athletes and violating the rules of the conference were placed against the Lutheran school.

The Springfield institution met all the Buckeye teams in basketball engagements, but these games had no bearing on the conference standings. If Wittenberg had been in the conference during the past cage season, it is a sure bet that it would have landed near the top, and it might have pushed either Cincinnati or Ohio Wesleyan from the top rung of the ladder.

Taking the percentages as they are, Wittenberg would have ended the season in third place, with five wins and three defeats. But if those Fighting Lutherans had been encouraged by the knowledge that the results of the games would have a bearing on the final standings, it is quite possible they might have pushed the Bearcats or Wesleyan out of their tie for the championship.

At the meeting last night, the conference voted unanimously to adopt a resolution to the effect that "whenever Wittenberg is prepared to live up to both the letter and the spirit of the Buckeye conference rules, the conference will consider Wittenberg's application for re-admission."

From present indications, Wittenberg wants to be reinstated. But it was not known today what action it will take or how soon a possible application may be made.

Just About the Same

An eastern physician predicts that in 50 years there will be no bald-headed men. Pairing him off with the other doctor who, a few weeks ago, declared that in 50 years we'd all be bald, we come to the conclusion that in 50 years there will be some bald and some hairy.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SIX COUNTY TEAMS PLAY IN TOURNAMENTS DURING WEEK

Scioto, Williamsport, Pickaway and Circleville High School Listed At Westerville, C. A. C. at Columbus and Gordons at Bremen In Heavy Schedule.

Pickaway-co basketball fans are looking forward to another big week of basketball when six county teams take parts in tournament played in three different locations.

The three county league teams, Scioto, Williamsport and Pickaway, finishing one, two, three in the tournament ended Saturday, along with the Circleville high school Tigers, travel to Westerville to take part in the central district class B meet.

The Circleville Athletic Club team treks to Columbus Friday evening to take part in the Ohio State Journal tournament.

The same evening the Gordon Tire team, claimants to the city championship by virtue of their victory over the Club last year, goes to Bremen to take part in a tournament there.

The Gordons will play the Glenford team, with the Mechling boys of Capitol University fame in the lineup.

There is a big possibility that

Pickaway-co teams may be forced to meet each other. It's just a trick of the fates that Williamsport and Scioto would meet in the district meet after their great game Saturday night. There is Circleville high school and Pickaway to consider. Either of these teams may be matched with the other.

Since their is no district or state girls' tournament, the county girls' teams have ended their seasons.

FERTILIZER SALES HIGH, SAYS BRIGGS

Ohio farmers are using more fertilizer this year than ever before, according to H. J. Briggs, service manager of the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau, if fertilizer sales figures for this date mean anything. Mr. Briggs said that the Farm Bureau had sold more fertilizer in Ohio than ever before at this time of year and had shipping orders on about 200 per cent more than last year at this date.

Incidentally, he said, more than 100 Farm Bureau fertilizer men had qualified for special prizes offered by the Home Office in Columbus for sales before Feb. 15.

It Is Easy To End Fat

That is, in the right way, used by modern physicians. No abnormal exercise or diet, but help to a gland that is weak. The recent large reduction in excess fat has been largely due to that method.

This modern method is embodied in Marmola's prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. In almost every circle you can see the amazing change it brings. If over-fat, you owe yourself a trial of Marmola. Don't remain abnormal. All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box. Each box states the formula and tells the reasons for results. CHEVY GARAGE USED-CAR SALE

The greatest 30-day sale of used cars ever staged locally started Saturday at the Harden Stevenson Co., Chevrolet dealer. Automobiles of all makes, each completely reconditioned, will be offered.

"Unused transportation" is the key-word of the sale, according to Mr. Harden. "That is what these cars really mean, service that has not yet been used."

"Too many persons have the wrong impression of used cars and the values that lie in them. This results from the unfortunate employment of the word 'used' which implies a previous ownership and a reduced worth."

"Today cars are built with years of life and limitless thousands of miles in them. Drivers are more efficient today. Cars are serviced more often than formerly. Better roads reduce abuse of travel. Cars are traded in when the bulk of their lives still is ahead of them. Some have been driven only a little longer than is necessary to break them in. Thousands of so-called used cars being offered today at prices far below their actual value are better than cars of like age still being run by their original owners."

"Backing our policy of careful trade-ins is the national Chevrolet policy of completely reconditioning a car before we offer it for resale. Every part of such a car is carefully checked, and if not up to our rigid standards, is repaired or replaced. The result is a car in more nearly perfect condition and with more service in it than if it was still in its first owner's hands."

PETTIT SPONSORS RADIO HOME TEST

The Pettit Tire and Battery Shop, exclusive dealer of Atwater-Kent Radios, is sponsoring a home test with Atwater-Kent Radios which starts Tuesday, March 4, and ends April 1. During this period they will place an Atwater-Kent Radio in the homes of any one interested in a new Radio for a three-day test of stations and distant stations. This gives every contestant an opportunity to find out more about Atwater-Kent Radios and each week the winner will be awarded a credit of $15 and $10 to apply on a new Atwater-Kent Radio.

Mr. Pettit is very much enthused in this new idea and feels that with their prize awards much interest will be shown in Atwater-Kent Radios during the next four weeks.

EARLY GERMINATION SEED TEST RESULTS REPORTED

Pickaway-co corn growers who attended the county wide growers meeting Feb. 20, at the Farm Bureau office, learn that the average section in Ohio was in a precarious position relative to seed corn for 1930. The unusual amount of moisture which accompanied the maturing period of the 1929 crop and which continued throughout the harvesting and storage, has resulted in a critical seed corn situation in most sections of Ohio.

Pickaway-co farmers are more fortunate than the average Ohio farmer, although there are a number of growers who must look up seed for their spring needs. Early germination tests conducted throughout the county indicate the definite germination test of their seed.

The results obtained from early tests conducted by Mrs. John Sark, of Ashville, show the following:

Harman Wright, 700 ears had a 95 percent germination; H. Peters, 400 ears, 65 percent; Donald Courtright, 200 ears, 92 percent; Ezra Hedges, 220 ears, 96 percent; J. W. Teegardin, 140 ears, 95 percent; J. W. Hay, 240 ears, 72 percent.

A number of men in addition to these who thought they had good seed, upon running germination tests, have found it necessary to discard all of their seed and seek other seed, because their corn did not grow. Good seed corn is the first essential that assures economic crop returns. Proper fitting of the seed bed, correct adjustment of the corn planter and liberal fertilizer and accompanied by a wise program of crop cultivation, are important factors which will be reflected in the harvesting of the corn crop of 1930.

CITIZENS WHO WON'T FIGHT

The Rev. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, thinks it is inconsistent to deny citizenship to immigrants who profess conscientious scruples against bearing arms in support of this country in case of war. We are all "behind the times," he maintains, in talking about "conscientious objections." The time has come when objecting to bearing arms is loyalty to the United States. This comes about, he explains, very simply.

"The government has signed the Paris peace pact by which it has outlawed war. Therefore it is good citizenship and the highest patriotism on the part of every individual to refuse to bear arms."

Most of us will reply immediately that good citizenship implies willingness to bear arms for our country in self-defense, and that the Kellogg-Briand pact does not forbid this. Such an interpretation is evidently justified by the mental reservation with which the powers, including our own country, accepted the pact. Such reservation was frankly recognized by all parties.

There remains, however, the unanswered question, "What is self-defense?" It has never been satisfactorily and officially defined. And if you believe the fighters, all wars, on both sides, are fought in self-defense. Then there is the reinforcing declaration in the Paris pact that we will never resort to any but peaceful measures.

Neither this nation nor any other nation is yet ready to accept the obvious implication of its pledge. The Rev. Mr. Morrison's final statement, however, can be accepted without question: "The unpatriotic citizen is he who, in spite of the government's action, continues to stir up war feelings." If any of our citizens are un-American now, they are the militarists.

WINTER MIGRANTS

The winter crowds are back in Florida again, as thick as they were in the hectic boom days. Miami is entertaining 150,000 visitors. St. Petersburg's streets are crowded continually. Other cities report traffic jams.

Business is good, naturally. But there is a difference. Though the total receipts are as great as they were last winter, the visitors spend less. It takes three of this year's migration, the merchants say, to spend as much as two of last year's.

This is probably true in other parts of the country at present. The important thing about Florida, the Gulf Coast and southern California is that they have come back notably in popularity. The southerly tendency in American migration was no mere fad.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXV.

THE cottage was filled with the smell of bacon frying and from the kitchen came the sound of sizzling. Shirley laughed, a shrill, high-pitched laugh that spoke of jangled nerves.

"Steady!" warned Alan, glancing at her with quick anxiety.

"It's all right," she assured him. "I laughed because I really am hungry. It seems mad to want—just breakfast."

It's the soundest proof of sanity," he smiled back. "The body is awfully useful for dragging one out of the clouds . . . I've arranged for a reasonably competent electrician to mend your magnet. Ah, here's Mrs. Downey."

They sat down.

"You'd better let me tackle the coffee-pot. Mrs. Downey's coffee requires very careful pouring. Funny finding an electrician in the country, isn't it? He's got rather a queer story."

She sensed that his attitude towards her had changed. He was still friendly and amiable and solicitous, but this was a mere interlude. After breakfast they must settle something.

"Suppose we have a stroll while Mrs. Downey is clearing up?" he suggested.

She murmured assent.

"I must just change this dress," she told him, and he carried the suitcase upstairs for her.

She came down in knickers, feeling more confident of herself. He was smoking on the porch. In five minutes they had reached the open without a word. In those few minutes she was resting, sure that, presently, Alan would tell her what they were going to do.

"Well, what about your personal plans?" he asked abruptly.

Alan's words chilled her. In a single sentence he had detached himself from her. He was willing to help her—to throw her a rope from the safety of the bank. But those few words had made it clear to her that she was alone in the waters.

"I haven't had time to think. Does it matter very much? I shall go back to New York and put up at a hotel."

"Why not go to Mrs. Sibley?"

"No," she was firm on that point. "I've dropped out, Alan. You don't seem to understand that."

He made no answer and she wondered whether he understood. It had been the most rigid of all the rules her father had taught her. "Remember, Shirley, if you drop out—drop out. Not like So-and-so, for instance."

"You see, a hotel will cost money," Alan was saying. "Your husband told me his income was about five thousand a year—that means he can make you an allowance of possibly two thousand."

"Alan!" she cried. "How can you think I would ever take a penny from him—"

"But you will have to take money from someone," he interrupted. "There's the hotel bill, if nothing else."

"Need we talk like this, Alan?" she protested. "It isn't, after all, merely a question of money-grubbing."

He caught on the phrase.

"But it is—just exactly that," he exclaimed. "Let me tell you that by the mere act of wanting to breathe and live from day to day we are all money-grubbers. Once you understand what money means you will find that money-grubbing is the solemn business of life. I tell you," he added warningly to his theme, "money-grubbing is the finest sort of earth—or the meanest—whichever you care to make it."

"It's easy enough for you to moralize about money," said Shirley, "but you're rich."

"It goes deeper than that," he countered. "There are money problems that riches will not solve. You cannot buy off money with money. I tried that with your husband and learned my lesson. Look, here, I have money enough without hurting myself—"

"Alan!"

"Quite so! When I put it like that you realize at once that it cannot be done. You realize that you cannot receive without giving. It's a copy-book maxim but it happens to be much more than good morality—it's good science."

"You come from the class that inherits money, but believe me that class gives service of some kind in return—even if it is only the service of pretending to give nothing. I believe the service de-words broke from her without conscious violation.

"By Jove, you've learned to ask that!" he exclaimed. "It's the first question in the catechism of money. . . . It's pretty tragic, Shirley, but though you're only twenty-seven you've asked that question too late in life. . . . I, at any rate, don't know the answer. We shall have to give it up and content ourselves with finding some practical way for you to live."

She sprang up from the boulder and faced him.

"You say you don't know the answer to the question, but I do. You do, too—only you think I haven't enough in me to understand it. You've made me see this—I must never take money again from anybody. I must earn. But before I have any money for

"Roger would not go to Macedonia. I will."

manded of you was that you should marry a millionaire or some man who could provide you with the means of doing your work—the work of being an ornament to the high world, as you call it."

"I don't understand the high world but I do understand that Society seems to require it. You were not willing to give that service—you chose romance."

"You cannot blame me for that. I loved him honestly and wholeheartedly at the time."

"I don't doubt it. But you accepted money—the money you inherited from your father—you accepted all the surroundings of the class in which you move on terms which might require you to sacrifice love. That's the contract the high world offers, you know."

"Throughout the decades that class has accepted the obligations of public service and of marriage in the interests of their class. They may be wrong fundamentally—that doesn't matter. You tried to accept their privileges and shirk the particular responsibilities those privileges involved. You tried to receive without giving."

Shirley sank down onto a boulder. Alan stood by her side, looking over her into the horizon, pursuing his own train of thought.

"But—what can I give?" The myself I must pay you back you half million.

"Don't harp on that, Shirley. For one thing you've got hold of the wrong end of the stick. If I all forgotten."

She ignored him. She felt suddenly as strong as he and utterly unafraid of his anger.

"Don't you remember what you said?" she pressed him. "You said we didn't owe you just figure in a pass-book. You said we owed you, too, all the nerve-wrack and the thrill and—the despair that went to the making of that money. I can give you all of that."

"Roger would not go to Macedonia. I will."

For a moment she saw hope in his eyes, then saw the hope fade into cynicism.

"Come out of the clouds, Shirley. You've simply keyed yourself up again. It's absurd."

"Why is it absurd?" she challenged him. "You said that Roger would have to see the government officials and get a concession out of them. When I've learned what to ask for, I can ask for that as well as Roger."

"It's not easy talking to Balkan statesmen."

Golf—and Health!

Dr. Copeland's Message Today

The Fault in This Great Outdoor Game Lies in the Possibility of Overdoing by Those Not in Robust Health, Says Authority.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DURING the past twenty-five years golf has become a game of great prominence in this country. Its popularity is shown by the increase in the number of municipally-owned golf courses everywhere.

after mild exertion.

Severe exercise increases the danger in cases of abnormal heart or kidney conditions.

Sleeplessness, followed by fatigue in the morning, with loss of appetite, indicates a poor physical condition. Also, low vitality is indicated by a lowered blood pressure, especially in the standing position, with higher heart rate and a slow return to normal, after very moderate exercise.

It goes without saying that a mere friendly game has less effect on the pulse rate and heart rate than anything like a championship game. The energy spent in playing golf cannot be minimized.

It has been estimated "that a person walking at the rate of four miles an hour over a conventional level course of 6,000 yards spends as much

Doctors prescribe golf for their patients, and the doctors, too, find some time to play the game, though goodness knows how they find it!

Golf no longer is for the rich. The business man gets his exercise in his pet game.

The age limit does not enter into the discussion. Young, middle-aged and the retired business man all go the limit in this game.

Last summer the International Y. M. C. A. made an interesting summary of certain findings made under their auspices. They studied the physical reactions of about one hundred golfers.

Among other conclusions the following were noted:

In heart cases, an easy game of golf does not necessarily cause injury.

Valvular lesions of the heart, but well-compensated, react in the same way as sound hearts energy as he would in lifting himself five times to the top of the highest skyscraper in New York; or, walking with a speed of about two miles an hour, he would spend enough energy to lift himself a little over four times to the top of the same building."

This is interesting reading. But you can see what energy can be expended on golf.

In the healthy person the heart rate increases with physical exercise, and in general, returns to normal in a short time. The danger of overdoing in the game is not so great for a person in robust health.

CITIZENS WHO WON'T FIGHT

The Rev. Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century, thinks it is inconsistent to deny citizenship to immigrants who profess conscientious scruples against bearing arms in support of this country in case of war. We are all "behind the times," he maintains, in talking about "conscientious objections." The time has come when objecting to bearing arms is loyalty to the United States. This comes about, he explains, very simply.

"The government has signed the Paris peace pact by which it has outlawed war. Therefore it is good citizenship and the highest patriotism on the part of every individual to refuse to bear arms."

Most of us will reply immediately that good citizenship implies willingness to bear arms for our country in self-defense, and that the Kellogg-Briand pact does not forbid this. Such an interpretation is evidently justified by the powers, including our own country, accepted the pact. Such reservation was frankly recognized by all parties.

There remains, however, the unanswered question, "What is self-defense?" It has never been satisfactorily and officially defined. And if you believe the fighters, all wars, on both sides, are fought in self-defense. Then there is the reinforcing declaration in the Paris pact that we will never resort to any but peaceful measures.

Neither this nation nor any other nation is yet ready to accept the obvious implication of its pledge. The Rev. Mr. Morrison's final statement, however, can be accepted without question: "The unpatriotic citizen is he who, in spite of the government's action, continues to stir up war feelings." If any of our citizens are un-American now, they are the militarists.

WINTER MIGRANTS

The winter crowds are back in Florida again, as thick as they were in the hectic boom days. Miami is entertaining 150,000 visitors. St. Petersburg's streets are crowded continually. Other cities report traffic jams.

Business is good, naturally. But there is a difference. Though the total receipts are as great as they were last winter, the visitors spend less. It takes three of this year's migration, the merchants say, to spend as much as two of last year's.

This is probably true in other parts of the country at present. The important thing about Florida, the Gulf Coast and southern California is that they have come back notably in popularity. The southerly tendency in American migration was no mere fad.

"MASTER of MONEY" BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXV. THE cottage was filled with the smell of bacon frying and from the kitchen came the sound of sizzling. Shirley laughed, a shrill, high-pitched laugh that spoke of jangled nerves.

"Steady!" warned Alan, glancing at her with quick anxiety. "It's all right," she assured him. "I laughed because I really am hungry. It seems mad to want—just breakfast."

It's the soundest proof of sanity," he smiled back. "The body is awfully useful for dragging one out of the clouds. I've arranged for a reasonably competent electrician to mend your magnet. Ah, here's Mrs. Downey."

They sat down. "You'd better let me tackle the coffee-pot. Mrs. Downey's coffee requires very careful pouring. Funny finding an electrician in the country, isn't it? He's got rather a queer story."

She sensed that his attitude towards her had changed. He was still friendly and amiable and so, but this was a mere interlude. After breakfast they must settle something.

"Suppose we have a stroll while Mrs. Downey is clearing up?" he suggested.

She murmured assent. "I must just change this dress," she told him, and he carried the suitcase upstairs for her.

She came down in knickers, feeling more confident of herself. He was smoking on the porch. In five minutes they had reached the open without a word. In those few minutes she was resting, sure that, presently, Alan would tell her what they were going to do.

"Well, what about your personal plans?" he asked abruptly. Alan's words chilled her. In a single sentence he had detached himself from her. He was willing to help her—to throw her a rope from the safety of the bank. But these few words had made it clear to her that she was alone in the waters.

"I haven't had time to think. Does it matter very much? I shall go back to New York and put up at a hotel."

"Why not go to Mrs. Sibley?" "No." She was firm on that point. "I've dropped out, Alan. You don't seem to understand that."

He made no answer and she wondered whether he understood. It had been the most rigid of all the rules her father had taught her. "Remember, Shirley, if you drop out—drop out. Not like So-and-so, for instance."

"Alan," she said, "a hotel will cost money. Alan was saying, 'Your husband told me his income was about five thousand a year—that means he can make you an allowance,' of possibly two thousand."

"Alan," she cried. "How can you think I would ever take a penny from him?"

"But you will have to take money from someone," he interrupted. "There's the hotel bill, if nothing else."

"Need we talk like this, Alan?" she protested. "It isn't, after all, merely a question of money-grubbing."

He caught on the phrase. "But it is—just exactly that," he exclaimed. "Let me tell you that by the mere act of wanting to breathe and live from day to day we are all money-grubbers. Once you understand what money means you will find that money-grubbing is the solemn business of life."

"He added warning to his theme. 'Money-grubbing is the finest sport on earth—or the meanest—whichever you care to make it.'"

"It's easy enough for you to moralize about money," said Shirley, ill-temperedly. "You're rich. It goes deeper than that," he countered. "There are money problems that riches will not solve. You cannot buy off money with money. I tried that with your husband and learned my lesson. Look here, I have money enough without hurting myself."

"Alan!" "Quite so! When I put it like that you realize at once that it cannot be done. You realize that you cannot receive without giving. It's a copy-book maxim but it happens to be much more than good morality—it's good science."

"You come from the class that inherits money, but believe me that class gives service of some kind in return—even if it is only the service of pretending to give nothing. I believe the service de-words broke from her without conscious violation. "By Jove, you've learned to ask that!" he exclaimed. "It's the first question in the catechism of money. . . . It's pretty tragic, Shirley, but though you're only twenty-seven you've asked that question too late in life. . . . I, at any rate, don't know the answer. We shall have to give it up and content ourselves with finding some practical way for you to live."

She sprang up from the boulder and faced him. "You say you don't know the answer to the question, but I do. You do, too—only you think I haven't enough in me to understand it. You've made me see this—I must never take money again from anybody. I must earn it. But before I have any money for manded of you was that you should marry a millionaire or some man who could provide you with the means of doing your work—the work of being an ornament to the high world, as you call it."

"I don't understand the high world but I do understand that society seems to require it. You were not willing to give that service—you chose romance."

"You cannot blame me for that. I loved him honestly and wholeheartedly at the time."

"He didn't doubt it. But you accepted money—the money you inherited from your father—you accepted all the surroundings of the class in which you move on terms which might require you to sacrifice love. That's the contract the high world offers, you know."

"Throughout the generations that class has accepted the obligations of public service and of marriage in the interests of their class. They may be wrong fundamentally—that doesn't matter. You tried to accept their privileges and shirk the particular responsibilities those privileges involved. You tried to receive without giving."

Shirley sank down onto a boulder. Alan stood by her side, looking over her into the horizon, pursuing his own train of thought. "But—what can I give?" The myself I must pay you back you half million.

"Don't harp on that, Shirley. For one thing you've got hold of the wrong end of the stick. It's all forgotten."

She ignored him. She felt suddenly as strong as he and utterly unafraid of his anger.

"Don't you remember what you said?" she pressed him. "You said we didn't owe you just figure: in a pass-book. You said we owed you, too, all the nerve-wreck and the thrill and—the despair that went to the making of that money. I can give you all of that."

"How?" "Roger would not go to Macedonia. I will."

For a moment she saw hope in his eyes, then saw the hope fade into cynicism.

"Come out of the clouds, Shirley. You're simply keyed yourself up again. It's absurd."

"Why is it absurd?" she challenged hotly. "You said that Roger would have to see the government officials and get a concession out of them. When I've learned what to ask for, I can ask for that as well as Roger."

"It's not easy talking to Balkan statesmen."

Golf—and Health! Dr. Copeland's Message Today

The Fault in This Great Outdoor Game Lies in the Possibility of Overdoing by Those Not in Robust Health, Says Authority.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DURING the past twenty-five years golf has become a game of great prominence in this country. Its popularity is shown by the increase in the number of municipally-owned golf courses everywhere.

Doctors prescribe golf for their patients, and the doctors, too, find some time to play the game, though goodness knows how they find it!

Golf no longer is for the rich. The business man gets his exercise in his pet game. The age limit does not enter into the discussion. Young, middle-aged and the retired business man all go the limit in this game.

Last Summer the International Y. M. C. A. made an interesting summary of certain findings made under their auspices. They studied the physical reactions of about one hundred golfers.

Among other conclusions the following were noted: In heart cases, an easy game of golf does not necessarily cause injury. Valvular lesions of the heart, but well-compensated, react in the same way as sound hearts after mild exertion.

Severe exercise increases the danger in cases of abnormal heart or kidney conditions. Sleeplessness, followed by fatigue in the morning, with loss of appetite, indicates a poor physical condition. Also, low vitality is indicated by a lowered blood pressure, especially in the standing position.

It goes without saying that a mere friendly game has less effect on the pulse rate and heart rate than any thing like a championship game. The energy spent in playing golf cannot be minimized.

It has been estimated "that a person walking at the rate of four miles an hour over a conventional level for a course of 4,000 yards spends as much

However, it is better for those in robust health to keep to an easy game over an easy, plain course. Most golf courses are built in hill places, and this increases the amount of energy spent in playing the game. Half an hour is usually sufficient time to play for persons who have such reactions as extreme fatigue, loss of weight, or any feeling of health.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Lee Tracy, the original star of the stage production, "Broadway" appears at the Grand theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday with an all-star cast in "Big Time," one of the big time pictures of the past few months.

The story is wound around Hollywood and tells of the triumph and heartbreaks behind the scenes in vaudeville and a Hollywood motion picture studio.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Wire congratulations to Marilyn Miller by Western Union, and secure an autographed photo of the beautiful star of "Sally," whose engagement at the Cliftona closes after tonight.

By arrangement with Western Union, the Cliftona will give away personal autographed photos of Miss Miller to everyone bringing a copy of a congratulatory telegram to the theatre. Due to the popularity of the star and the excessive demand for autographed photos, it is extremely difficult to obtain a genuine signature. Through influential sources, however, the Cliftona has obtained a sufficient supply and these will be given away to the sender of every telegram.

A clever window display has been prepared by the local Western Union manager, and every facility for the speedy transmission of telegrams has been provided for. Suggested telegrams, as well as a genuine personal autographed picture of Miss Miller, may be seen at the Western Union office.

Frivolity Reigns At Monday Club's Annual Banquet

Once each year the Circleville Monday club meets for a social season when all things intellectual or educational are neglected and the evening is devoted to entertainment.

This year the meeting was at the Presbyterian church with dinner served at 6:30 o'clock. The table set in the parlors of the church was decorated in white and green, symbolic of St. Patrick's day. The candles were green, and smilax intertwined the holders. St. Patrick's Day favors for the guests were found at each place.

The banquet preceded the program, which was under the direction of Mrs. Tom Renick. The opening numbers were two Irish recitations given by Mrs. Renick. Then followed an amusing play, a satire on club women given by Mrs. Carl Ritz, Mrs. Fred Griner, Miss Sara Swearingen and Miss Mary Radcliffe. The remainder of the program was devoted to the production of musical pictures.

They were: First "School Days." As Miss Abbe Mills Clarke played this melody, the curtain on the stage was drawn back and Mrs. Charles May, dressed in overalls, and straw hat, and Miss Sadie Brunner in Gingham dress and sunbonnet were shown. Mrs. May had a big red apple in her pocket and was offering Miss Brunner a bite out of another.

Second "Madam Butterfly." This was Mrs. Robert Wylie in a Japanese kimono, with a fan and a parasol.

Third: "The Merry Widow." Mrs. Tom Renick was a splendid picture of this famous character. In a puffed and bustled model of the mauve decade. Her hat turned up in front, and boasted a large curled ostrich plume which flowed over her shoulder. Mrs. Renick assumed a coy attitude with one finger daintily pressing her cheek in true Merry Widow style.

Fourth: "Among My Souvenirs." Mrs. G. L. Hitler, appeared in this picture. The drawn curtain showed her holding old letters tied with ribbon and a chest of memoirs.

Fifth: "Keep the Home Fires Burning." Mrs. Ray Ried got a big hand with her interpretation of this song. She wore an apron and cap and carried a poker and a bucket of coal.

Sixth: "I am Always Blowing Bubbles." Mrs. Clark Will performed the representation by showing a surprising knowledge of the art of really blowing bubbles.

Seventh: "The Jewel Song" from Faust. Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, with long braids of hair twined with jewels, and holding a box of precious stones, looked into a mirror, representing Marguerite, from the opera.

Eighth: "Singing in the Rain." This was cleverly done. Mrs. Clark Will, in a bright slicker and blue beret stood under a genuine downpour of water, in an attitude of song, while Miss Clarke played the popular piece on the piano. It was suspected that Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, president of the Monday club, stood on a chair and poured the water from a sprinkling can, but the alleged fact has not been proven.

Ninth: "The Irish Wash Woman" was cleverly done by Mrs. Rae Bailes in proper costume and realistic paraphernalia.

Tenth: "Beautiful Lady" from the Chocolate Soldier was Miss Miriam Ruggles in elaborate evening attire with sequins, which looked lovely under the stage lighting. Miss Clarke played the number from the comedy.

Eleventh: "The Star Spangled Banner." The American flag was shown under a spot, rippling from a gentle breeze. The effect was inspiring, and the audience arose to sing this song which closed the program.

Mrs. L. T. Shaner was chairman of the banquet committee. She was assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Groce, Mrs. Rob Lilly, Mrs. James Swearingen, Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, Mrs. Freda Goeller, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap and Miss Sara Swearingen.

BIRTHDAYS ARE CELEBRATED
A jolly crowd assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orley Binkley of Stoutsville Sunday. The occasion was the anniversary of both of their birthday anniversaries.

At 10 o'clock a two course lunch was served, consisting of ham sandwiches, pickles, pimento cheese, California ice cream, coffee, angel food cake, candy and apples.

Miss Helen Binkley and Miss Evelyn Norman acted as hostesses. Mr. and Mrs. Binkley were highly pleased at the honors of the affair, and were appreciative of the birthday remembrances showered upon them.

Those who enjoyed the party were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Parcells, and son, Raymond of Stoutsville, Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair Binkley and daughter, Helen of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Norman, Evelyn Ellis and Betty Norman, Miss Laura McKittrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, and Mr. Bell, all of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Binkley and two children, Robert and Walter, of Lancaster, Miss Ollie Parcells, Miss Gertrude Parcells and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Huff of Stoutsville.

AN ORDER OF SULPHUR AND MOLASSES, PLEASE

Honestly, this March weather has been upset. What with rain one minute, snow the next, a few blizzards thrown at us for good measure, and some swell sunshine in between times—we don't know whether we're coming or going.

We don't know whether to tell you all about the new spring furniture or advise you to buy a snow shovel. As Elliott Voll says, March weather is like a woman's mind—because it changes.

But yet there is something disturbing—very elemental in the air. We saw robins the other day; there is greenery on the hills, and the skies seem so clear at times (Boy, our Rimming Dictionary, quick!)—and to our mind comes a delightful vision of getting a par 4 on No. 9, and an afternoon with rod and fly down on Darby Creek. It's grand, this business of springtime. We don't care whether the store stays open or not—not much! But if we could catch some sleep—particularly during the day—you know, a couple hours in the afternoon—what's that? Will we have a drink? Yes, indeed, and thank you kindly. Make ours a sulphur and molasses, please!

Joseph Burns informs us that while we are making a fuss about spring items, he's on the market for summer merchandise. We were beginning to have our doubts about Joe, until it occurred to us that he is heating his home with a Heatrola and enjoying summer warmth right now.

Sam: "My gal am so lazy she won't laugh when she hears a funny joke."
Rastus: "Huh! Dat ain't nothin'. My gal am so doggoned lazy she won't ache when she got a pain."

Modern girls not only dress fit to kill, but many of them cook the same way.

EDITIN' RTT.

Getting out this paper is no picnic. If we print jokes, people say we are silly; if we don't, they say we are too serious. If we stick close to the job all day, we ought to be out hunting up business. If we go out and try to hustle, we ought to be on the job in the store. If we don't print contributions, we don't appreciate genius; and if we do print them, the paper is filled with junk. If we make a change in the other fellow's write-up, we are too critical; if we don't we are asleep. If we clip things from other papers, we are too lazy to write them ourselves. If we don't, we are stuck on our own stuff. Now, like as not, some guy will say we swiped this from some magazine. We did. (Thanks to Don H. Watt, Secretary, Circleville Rotary Club, from whom we swiped this item).

Speaking of mirrors, we are reminded that we have just received a large shipment of the latest designs. In all of our 14 years of experience, we doubt if we have ever had such a wonderful array of "lookin'" glasses. Why not drop in and choose one of them for your home? It is our opinion that mirrors and lamps add more charm to a home than any other items. We have also received an assortment of mirror and picture cords.

The remainder of the program was devoted to the production of musical pictures.

They were: First "School Days." As Miss Abbe Mills Clarke played this melody, the curtain on the stage was drawn back and Mrs. Charles May, dressed in overalls, and straw hat, and Miss Sadie Brunner in Gingham dress and sunbonnet were shown. Mrs. May had a big red apple in her pocket and was offering Miss Brunner a bite out of another.

Second "Madam Butterfly." This was Mrs. Robert Wylie in a Japanese Kimono, with a fan and a parasol.

Third: "The Merry Widow." Mrs. Tom Renick was a splendid picture of this famous character, in a puffed and bustled model of the mauve decade. Her hat turned up in front, and boasted a large curled ostrich plume which flowed over her shoulder. Mrs. Renick assumed a coy attitude with one finger daintily pressing her cheek in true Merry Widow style.

Fourth: "Among My Souvenirs." Mrs. G. L. Hitler, appeared in this picture. The drawn curtain showed her holding old letters tied with ribbon and a chest of memoirs.

Fifth: "Keep the Home Fires Burning." Mrs. Ray Ried got a big hand with her interpretation of this song. She wore an apron and cap and carried a poker and a tucket of coal.

Sixth: "I am Always Blowing Bubbles." Mrs. Clark Will performed the representation by showing a surprising knowledge of the art of really blowing bubbles.

Seventh: "The Jewel Song" from Faust. Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, with long braids of hair twined with jewels, and holding a box of precious stones, looked into a mirror, representing Marguerite, from the opera.

Eighth: "Singing in the Rain." This was cleverly done. Mrs. Clark Will, in a bright slicker and blue beret stood under a genuine downpour of water, in an attitude of song, while Miss Clarke played the popular piece on the piano. It was suspected that Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, president of the Monday club, stood on a chair and poured the water from a sprinkling can, but the alleged fact has not been proven.

Ninth: "The Irish Wash Woman" was cleverly done by Mrs. Rae Bales in proper costume and realistic paraphernalia.

Tenth: "Beautiful Lady" from the Chocolate Soldier was Miss Miriam Ruggles in elaborate evening attire with sequins, which looked lovely under the stage lighting. Miss Clarke played the number from the comedy.

Eleventh: "The Star Spangled Banner." The American Flag was shown under a spot, rippling from a gentle breeze. The effect was inspiring, and the audience arose to sing this song which closed the program.

Mrs. L. T. Shaner was chairman of the banquet committee. She was assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Groce, Mrs. Rob Lilly, Mrs. James Swearingen, Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, Mrs. Freda Goeller, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap and Miss Sara Swearingen.

AN ORDER OF SULPHUR AND MOLASSES, PLEASE

Honestly, this March weather has been upset. What with rain one minute, snow the next, a few blizzards thrown at us for good measure, and some swell sunshine in between times—we don't know whether we're coming or going.

We don't know whether to tell you all about the new spring furniture or advise you to buy a snow shovel. As Elliott Voll says, March weather is like a woman's mind—because it changes.

But yet there is something disturbing—very elemental in the air. We saw robins the other day; there is greenery on the hills, and the skies seem so clear at times (Boy, our Rimming Dictionary, quick!)—and to our mind comes a delightful vision of getting a par 4 on No. 9, and an afternoon with rod and fly down on Darby Creek.

It's grand, this business of springtime. We don't care whether the store stays open or not—not much! But if we could catch some sleep—particularly during the day—you know, a couple hours in the afternoon—what's that? Will we have a drink? Yes, indeed, and thank you kindly. Make ours a sulphur and molasses, please!

Joseph Burns informs us that while we are making a fuss about spring items, he's on the market for summer merchandise. We were beginning to have our doubts about Joe, until it occurred to us that he is heating his home with a Heatrola and enjoying summer warmth right now.

in'. My gal am so doggoned lazy she won't ache when she got a pain."

Modern girls not only dress fit to kill, but many of them cook the same way.

EDITIN' RTT.

Getting out this paper is no picnic. If we print jokes, people say we are silly; if we don't, they say we are too serious. If we stick close to the job all day, we ought to be out hunting up business. If we go out and try to hustle, we ought to be on the job in the store. If we don't print contributions, we don't appreciate genius; and if we do print them, the paper is filled with junk. If we make a change in the other fellow's write-up, we are too critical; if we don't we are asleep. If we clip things from other papers, we are too lazy to write them ourselves. If we don't, we are stuck on our own stuff. Now, like as not, some guy will say we swiped this from some magazine. We did. (Thanks to Don H. Watt, Secretary, Circleville Rotary Club, from whom we swiped this item).

Curtis Birkhead, one of our men, asks that the readers of RTT wish him all the good luck possible. Curt was cleaning and arranging the mirror stock one day last week when he broke one of them.

Speaking of mirrors, we are reminded that we have just received a large shipment of the latest designs. In all of our 14 years of experience, we doubt if we have ever had such a wonderful array of "lookin' glasses." Why not drop in and choose one of them for your home? It is our opinion that mirrors and lamps add more charm to a home than any other items. We have also received an assortment of mirror and picture cords.
